WAR NEWS.

KING WILLIAM'S DISPATCH.
LONDON, Jan. 29.—4:30 P. M. Sunday.—The Emperor William has sent the following dispatch to the Empress Auguste:

VERSAILLES, 2 P. M. Sunday.—Last night an armistice for three weeks was signed. The regulars and mobiles are to be entered in Paris as prisoners of war. The national guard will undertake the maintenance of order. We reoccupy all the forts and Paris remains invested, but will be allowed to re-occupy as soon as the arms are surrendered.

The National Assembly is to be assembled, to meet at Bordeaux in a fortnight.

All the armies in the field restrain their respective positions. The ground between the opposing tents to be neutral. This is the reward of patriotism, heroism and great sacrifice. Thank God for this fresh mercy; may peace soon follow.

(Signed) WILHELM.
DISPATCH TO SECRETARY FISCH.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Secretary Fish has received the following telegram from Er. Moran, Charge de Affairs in London, dated London, Sunday morning, January 29th:

The German Ambassador here has been officially informed that the capitulation of all Paris and the fort and an armistice for three weeks by land and sea was signed about 10 o'clock this evening by Count Bismarck and Jules Favre.

The army of Paris will remain prisoners of war in the city, but it is not known whether they will be disarmed or not. The details have not yet been received. Count Bernstoff thinks an important fact that the armistice ends over the sea, and that it should be made known as widely as possible.

DISPATCH FROM PARIS.

BORDEAUX, Jan. 30.—A dispatch for worded from Versailles, Jan. 28, by Jules Favre to the Governor of Bordeaux, says the treaty was signed to day. There is to be an armistice of 21 days; National Assembly is convened at Bordeaux on February 1st; the elections are to take place on the 8th or 9th of February. A number of members of the Paris Government leave at once for Bordeaux.

Newspaper Reports.
(Special to the Herald.)

Versailles, Jan. 29.—The terms of peace offered by Bismarck to the French nation are as follows:

1st. The cession of the Province of Alsace and a part of the Province of Lorraine, known as German terra incognita.

2d. Money indemnity of one thousand million francs.

3d. Thirty war ships from the French fleet.

4th. One of the colonies now held by France, but which I cannot learn.

The money indemnity must be guaranteed by the municipal authorities.

If this guarantee should be refused the property of rich individuals will be held in possession of until compensation is obtained.

[World Special.]

Versailles, Jan. 29.—The terms of the capitulation of Paris provide for the possession of the forts around Paris by the Germans, but no occupation of the city by them. The Prince Imperial is to be the future Emperor, with the Empress as Regent.

A large force will be immediately dispatched in pursuit of Chanzy.

Berlin, Jan. 29.—All Germany is abuzz with rejoicing; men, women and children throng the streets; men embrace each other with joy, and the women tears of congratulation. All the churches are devoted to prayer and thanksgiving.

Versailles, Jan. 29.—The Herald's special says that Fort Valerien was taken last night by the Prussian engineers to draw the mines. Heavy guns will be immediately moved into the forts, so no confidence can be placed in the fickle population until after the general disarming. Strong forces of infantry and artillery have moved forward to cover the destruction by fire, of three thousand dollar house. The girl thinks she will get married.

SENATOR BAXTER.—Senator Baxter instead of going to Du Luth on the Legislative excursion last week took the opportunity to visit his family—sensible man. It is said however by those who witnessed the destruction of a large amount of bad whisky.

Our Representative A. G. Flod so far has discharged his duties satisfactorily to his constituents. It was a little hard for his democratic supporters to witness his vote for Window for United States Senate, but they could not expect otherwise. The cohesive power of party is all powerful, too much so in all parties, as Regent.

Elections will be permitted in all the departments, together with the free circulation of deputies throughout the country."

The army of Paris, regiments of the line, marines and mobiles are to be prisoners of war, with the exception of 12,000 men who are required to maintain order in Paris.

London, Jan. 31.—All the rivers and railroads have been opened for the transportation of food into Paris. The Eighty Prussian Regiments has occupied Fort Valerien and Dumont.

The armistice with France begins instantly at Paris, and three days later in the department, and expires at noon, February 19.

As a line of division between the German and French forces they are divided into two portions, occupying the departments of Calvados and Orne. The Germans hold all south of the Loire and the Young neighborhood.

Java is excepted from the provisions of the armistice, which includes the naval forces of both powers in all parts of the world.

The reason that our paper was not printed in time last week, was that our press got broken.

Arrangements have been made whereby the HERALD will appear in a new dress early in the spring, and also occupy an enlarged form. New rollers are on the way, which when received will greatly improve the appearance of the HERALD.

SLEIGHING.—Now is the time for sleighing, beautiful weather, good roads, moonlight nights. And we should judge that the young folks of Chaska Carver and Shakopee were taking the present opportunity for regular old fashioned sleigh rides, for the roads between the three towns have presented a lively appearance for the past few days, fast teams, fast boys, fast girls. (ride fast we mean) We can imagine many "bo-ho-ho" and many a mother's love struck son, during the past weeks' moonlit evenings, saying to himself:

"All the joy purchased to man,

In these suspenseful winter days,

As sleighing approaches heaven so near. As sleighing with a girl! Dear little darling, with tiny little hat and white muff, who snuggles right up against his waistcoat, and lets him assist her in holding her muff. A dear little girl of a girl!

REURNED.—County Treasurer Has-

stab, has completed his rounds of the County on the annual collecting tour, and reports collections light.

SCHOOLS.—Supt. Du Toit, has been for the past six weeks, and is still visiting the public schools of the County. He reports great improvement over the last term.

BALLET.—Our friend Mr. Kerkel has issued notices announcing that he will give a grand dancing party at his place on Monday, February 20th 1871. We are assured that a good time will be enjoyed by all present. Good music will be in attendance. Tickets only $1.00 per couple including supper.

REAPPEAL.—We have been informed that the heirs of the late Franz H. Neuhau, have appealed from the decision of the Judge of Probate sustaining the will of deceased to the District Court.

As the deceased died the owner of a large amount of property, the question is to the validity or invalidity of the will because of considerable importance to the parties interested. Frank Warner Esq. appears for appellant and L. L. Baxter, J. Joseph Weinmann Esq. for Respondent.

It is expected that Rev. Mr. Pitwell will be at Epiphany services in this town next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. It is understood he will preach here every alternate Sunday during the winter and following summer.

HOT BRICK.—A young lady in the east lately took a hot brick to bed with her. In the morning her father called upon the Insurance Company to pay for the destruction by fire, of a three thousand dollar house. The girl thinks she will get married.

Special Notices.

A Cat Story.

Torpor is the characteristic of winter. Vegetation dies or falls into a state of frost. The animals of instinctive nature are in a torpor, but there is no abating torpor in man, and no one tends to contend with it. Some of even the warm-blooded animals bury themselves in the earth and make themselves of little stir. The season of torpor is over, and the life-giving sun stimulates them to their stagnant blood, and restores their vigor. But man, although he feels the influence of the season, can protect himself against its effects. He has fuel to burn, and clothing can be used, and strengthen his muscular and cerebral action with the extra amount of vitality which the circumstances require. Of all indulgencies that have ever been recommended for this purpose, Hostetter's Stomach Balsam is the best. It is the best for the daily use of those who labor hard, because the human system is likely to catch colds and damps of winter in any latitude. Its effect is to promote a brisk and regular circulation of the blood, and to assist in the removal of the torpor. It has the tendency to produce fever. It imparts a healthy glow to the surface, and stimulates the exterior vessels to discharge. In the form of gentle perspiration, the body becomes clean, and the system is invigorated. Fever and the system are kindred. Fever and the biliousness, indigestion and colds, all of which are the symptoms of winter, are the result of the low temperature of winter, and are caused as well as cured by a course of this genial tonic and alterative.

Soldier's Homestead Bill.

A BILL has passed the House of Representatives in Congress extending the Homestead law for the benefit of soldiers. As it passed the House with only two opposing votes, those of Gilson of Virginia, and Smith of Oregon, it may be expected to pass the Senate without material change.

The bill provides that all honorably discharged soldiers and sailors, who served in the late rebellion 90 days, their widows and orphan children, can acquire homesteads on the public lands of the United States, or if discharged on account of wounds received or disability incurred in the line of duty, their term of enlistment shall be deducted from the time heretofore required to perfect title. In case of the death of any person who shall be entitled to a homestead under the provisions of the first section of this act, his widow, if unmarried, or in case of her death, or marriage, their minor orphan children, shall be entitled to all the benefits enumerated by the act; provided, that if such person died during term of enlistment, the whole term of enlistment shall be deducted from the time heretofore required to perfect title. Private soldiers and seamen, marines and officers who served 90 days, and are now inscribed on the pension rolls, are entitled to the benefits of the act.

Chief Justice Chase.

To pass from gay to grave, and to get the taste of New York out of my mouth, I called to pay my respects to this great and good man. He is laboring very ill. The long life of arduous labor for the public good, the weight of heavy responsibility rested upon one brain until at last the state man, possessed of the finest mind and the most perfect head went down in a terrible sickness. I was glad to find him unconscious. I was exceedingly rejoiced to know from observation, that his disease had not been as the public had been taught to believe, paralysis. He rose and greeted me with the kindly smile of old, and I could see no trace in his face or in his movements of that terrible American disease. He is much emaciated, and, of course, weak, but his features are erect and his weak and uncolored as the best day of a useful life. We had a long talk, made up, as our talks generally are, of jests and humorous comments, and I heard ring out a hearty laugh far stronger and healthier than his appearance would have me expect. Chief Justice Chase, with admirable constitution and superb physique, is yet in the prime of life, and has, as I firmly believe and most earnestly hope, many years of usefulness before him.

At the Annual Meeting of the State Agricultural Society held at St. Paul on Wednesday, Mr. O. P. Whitcomb of this city was re-elected President.

The following are the other officers elected: Secretary, C. H. Clark; Treasurer, C. A. Wheaton; Executive Committee, J. C. Randall, Winona County; Charles H. Hag, Hennepin county; R. H. Everett, Le Sueur county; Jas. M. Kusick, Washington county; A. M. Fridley, Anoka county; Jas. Felech, Mower county.

Belle Plaine Salt Works.

We learn from parties connected with the Belle Plaine Salt Company, that their work is progressing rapidly, and favorable indications increase as it proceeds. An iron tube six inches through, has been driven to the depth of 212 feet, and now rests on the bed rock. In a very short time arrangements will be perfected, and the drilling of the rock commenced. It is now almost beyond a doubt that immediately beneath the rock is the basin containing salt water, and everything thus far goes to prove that the brine is of uncommon strength. It has already been demonstrated that the salt will be of the best and finest quality.

St. Paul Pioneer.

The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia yesterday affirmed the judgment of the lower court in the case of Carolina Brown, colored, awarding her $1,500 damages for being ejected from the cars of the Washington, Alexandria & Georgetown railway. Judge Carver delivered the opinion of the Court.

The ice in the lower Hudson river moved yesterday afternoon, with about 150 fishermen on it. At the same time a tremendous gale of wind breasted the fisherman in great consternation, rushing for the shore, and at last accounts four of them were known to have perished.

TOWN Meetings.

Town meetings are to be held earlier this spring than heretofore. The Legislature of last winter passed an act changing the time from April to the second Tuesday in March, which will be observed.

IMPROVING.—We are happy to announce that J. M. Trolly of Dahlgreen, has so far improved as to be able to go out and visit his friends.

Mr. E. Ellsworth of this village is also rapidly improving.

Town clerks are required to post written or printed notices of the election in three of the most prominent places in their town, at least ten days prior to the meeting.

This, undoubtedly, was passed for the purpose of giving a more favorable time of the year for the attendance of the farming community.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—The many friends of M. F. Lineau, of Watertown, will learn with regret that he recently met with an accident, that will most likely confine him to the house for some time to come. He met with a very serious accident last week, while superintending the unloading of some logs at his mill. It seems that the hand-spikes slipped and that thereby the logs were precipitated upon Mr. Lineau breaking one of his legs above the ankle and bruising the other. Dr. Ames, dressed the wound and has the patient under charge. Mr. Lineau is doing well at present.

MERRIAM STATION.—We are indebted to Mr. Long the gentlemanly station agent at Merriam, for the following abstract of commodities received and forwarded from the station during the month of Jan'y.

PERSONAL.—Dr. Lewis of Carver, made us several pleasant visits during the week.

Dr. Northrop, of Jordan, also made our city a flying visit on Sunday, accompanied by Geo. A. Du Toit, of Carver.

Robt Miller, one of the pioneer settlers of Benton, and in fact of the County, was in town visiting his son-in-law, Mr. Hassensab on Tuesday.

We regret to have to announce the fact, that Judge Sargent is confined to the house, with Rheumatism. We hope to see him about soon.

Prof. H. B. Wilson's Annual report from the department of Public Instruction has reached us. The report is necessarily voluminous, embracing as it does, a large amount of information connected with the common school system of the State. The Prof. is making a very efficient Superintendent and his management of the common School system of the State reflects credit, both upon himself and the State.

ANOTHER DULUTH ITEM.

From the New York World.

From Duluth, Minnesota, a life insurance agent writes a letter to the "Daily Transcript" telling of the large life led there and therabouts. He was conservative at Boston, but now he skips about and kicks up his heels like a young colt a frosty morning when the mercury sinks to thirty degrees below zero; and in such weather he goes to a church to which flock women with babes in their arms from all the country within a circle whose radius is ten miles. Sometimes his toes get cold and his ears tingle, but he doesn't much mind such things.

When the Northern Pacific Railroad shall have been completed, the beggars and flower girls of New York, followed by H. G. passing, will undoubtedly take five hundred dollars and move their families to the head of Lake Superior.

The discomforts of life there may be done away with by hewing down trees, and wild justice will not long hesitate to dispose of the life insurance agents who infest the country. Thus all will be well, and the West be the haven of rest for all discontented men, women, and children of the East.

See the advertisement of Dr. Richardson in another column. Those in want of a Doctor had better call on Dr. Richardson.

CHASKA THURSDAY FEB. 16 1871.

Those 500,000 Acres.

Are the people of the state to be robbed of their lands?

This is a question which is now agitating the public mind; at least it is so in this vicinity.

It is said that combinations have already been formed in the Legislature, to divide up these internal improvement lands, between several of the Railroad Companies and other corporations, and that these combinations have already acquired sufficient power to carry the project, even over the Governor's veto, should he see fit to exercise his constitutional prerogative against it.

Ever since it was known that the State was entitled to these lands, there has been a regular horde of jobby thieves and legislative blunders hanging upon the skirts of our Legislature, whose object is and has been to plunder the State of these lands by fair means or foul.

As yet they have been defeated; but now they talk confidently of carrying their scheme with money, to be used in "building members of the Legislature!"

Then comes that with $25,000, they can buy both Senators and Representatives, in sufficient number to carry the scheme over the Governor's veto.

Now if this were true, it would be a most humiliating spectacle for the people of Minnesota to look upon; and yet it is talked over by these land Jobbyists just as familiarly and confidently as one neighbor talks with another about buying his farm, selling his team. We know whereof we speak, for we have heard it. We will not however, believe that such a diabolical wrong can be perpetrated, until we are compelled to. We believe that all such statements are but idle slanders upon the character of honorable members of the Legislature.

Let us then a year ago the people of the State agreed that these lands should be used for the purpose of paying off the old State Railroad bonds, and that the bondholders failed to come in time with their bonds, (the law requiring, as a condition that at least 2,000 bonds should be deposited with the State Treasurer, before any of the lands should be sold) and so we understand that Mr. Chamberlain deposited the bonds held by him, amounting to about $90,000.

Now it would seem to us, but just as Mr. Chamberlain deposited his bonds in good faith, in pursuance of the law and a vote of the people theron, that he should have a proportionate share of the land at the price fixed in the law, and thus cause the bonds so held by him. But if the lands are not to be used for this purpose, then we insist that they should be disposed of so as to be a benefit to the people of the whole State, as contemplated by the act of Congress, by whom they were granted to the State.

Excitement prevails in Washington over an agreement by the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia to report a bill compelling colored children to attend the white schools in this city. It is conceded that it will utterly ruin the public system here. The schools are now separate, and are in a most flourishing condition.

Mr. J. B. Beaumont, of Faribault county, went home last week with $57 in his pocketbook, received in payment of wood sold. Soon after reaching home, he laid his pocket book on a pile of stove wood, where he left it; and his wife, about that time, in replenishing the fire, put the pocketbook into the stove, and it was entirely consumed.

Two wheat warehouses at Brownsville were destroyed by fire on Monday morning last. They were the property of Mr. Anderson and Mr. Howell, and contained at the time 7,000 bushels of wheat and 8,000 bushels of buckwheat. Loss estimated at $12,000. Supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

Springs Valley dedicated a Baptist church on Sunday last. After the dedication services a subscription was taken up to pay carriages, &c., by which $36.00 was raised.

The Mower County Register says, "We understand that a party our sleighing on the high prairie east of here, were seized by prairie wolves, a few nights since."

A certain John Trechysyer, has given a quit claim deed to one Geo. W. March in consideration of ten dollars, for the town site of Mankato. The deed was properly witnessed and acknowledged.

Gov. Long subheads a petition to the city council of New Haven to allow the raising of street cars on Sunday.

War News.

London, Feb. 15.—The press of Paris allude to the proposed entry of Paris by the German army, in excited terms. The Reformee opposes the entry of German troops as such, and foresees a bloody encounter between them and the citizens. A majority of the journals counsel the citizens to remain indoors and display mourning emblems from their residences during the passage of German troops through the city.

Dissatisfaction prevails in Paris at the meanness with which provisions are distributed, but distress and mortality are decreasing. Sealed letters can now be transmitted by mail to Paris.

It is stated that the Paris Government will publish minutes of its sittings from the 4th of September to the conclusion of the armistice. The Siecle urges the Bordeaux Government to do likewise.

Several citizens of Dieppe and surrounding country waited on General Commander Rouen, and vainly appealed for an abatement of the exactions imposed upon them.

The Ralite publicly says that General Brabbes, commander of the twenty-fourth corps, has been arrested on the Swiss frontier, and that notice of his dismissal from the command has been sent to Lyons and thence to Bordeaux.

Details continue to reach London of the increasing exactions of the Germans.

Brunswick, Feb. 15.—It is stated that General Faiderhoen, recent commissioner to the French government, urged the army of the north to be in readiness again, to meet either foreigners or internal disturbers.

London, Feb. 15.—The Echo this evening, says Prince Napoleon is in London, and will make this city his permanent residence.

BUCHAREST, Feb. 15.—The excitement in Russia has considerably decreased, and now it seems probable that a settlement of all the difficulties will be arranged.

The idea of a charged dynasty has disappeared from the public mind.

London, Feb. 14.—A dispatch from Havre says the Prussian contingent to violate the armistice, and still imposing contributions on the people. The dispatch adds that where districts are unable to pay the Major are arrested and imprisoned as hostiles.

London, Feb. 14.—The Kreuz Zeitung estimates that the French elections have resulted in at least two-thirds of the votes in favor of monarchical institutions, and says that scarcely one-third of the members elected to the Assembly are republicans. The Imperialists are also badly beaten, and the future of France seems to be between the Bourbons and Orleans.

BRAZIL, Feb. 15.—It is reported to diplomatic circles that Germany has refused the request of the British government to communicate the conditions upon which they are willing to make peace.

London, Feb. 15.—A Berlin special correspondent of the London Times telegraphs to the journal that in consequence of the peaceful result of the French elections Count Bismarck has the armistice by a week, it to be made a definite agreement dependent on only certain conditions.

BRAZIL, Feb. 15.—Belfort has surrendered. The garrison will be allowed to march out with all the honors of war.

The armistice has been extended to the departments of Colônia, Juruá and Doubs.

LILLE, Feb. 14.—Railway communication with Paris is temporarily suspended. Trains hence from Paris are stopped by the Prussians, but trains from Paris bound north are not interfere with.

The Republican ticket for Assembly in the Department of Somme was badly defeated.

VERSAILLES, Feb. 14.—The French have proposed a prolongation of the armistice.

I would respectfully notify my friends that I will give a grand Ball, on Monday evening, February 20th 1871, at my Lake House Hall, in Waconia. I most cordially invite my friends far and near to be present on the occasion, also to provide themselves with masks if they wish to, as there will be a grand display of the same. A prize will be tendered to the wearer of the best lady mask also to the wearer of the best gentlemans mask.

The several Singing Societies of the County have been invited, several of which have already signified their acceptance. A good time will be enjoyed. Good music will be in attendance. Tickets only $1.00 per couple including supper.

PAYING THE FIDDLER.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—A Versailles correspondent of the Times telegraphs that a portion of the contributions have been paid via two million pounds in bills of exchange, one million in notes of the bank of France, and one million in specie. If peace is made on fair terms, it is probable that Germans will not enter Paris, but the twenty fourth of February is considered the probable day for the entry in case one is determined on.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The interruption of railway communication between Lille and Paris was caused by the excess of traffic, which blocked up the road.

STEIGOURING.—The sleighing is getting quite thin in this vicinity,

The Saint Paul Pioneer was established in 1849, upon the organization of the Territory, and is the oldest newspaper in the State, and has always been regarded as the most complete newspaper.

Its departments, were printed in the State. We now add, however, becoming daily, what it has sold for a national reputation, and it has been, for more than twenty years, a welcome guest in the homes tens of thousands of our readers.

To maintain and enhance the reputation and usefulness of the Pioneer, will be the constant aim of the Proprietors and employees, in every department, in the interest of obtaining the latest news from all parts of the world.

We are unequalled by any other newspaper in the country.

The Telegraph is always well used without regard to expense. All the Foreign news rammed into our ocean cables, will be published in the Pioneer, the Proceedings of Congress are fully illustrated in our paper as in the metropolitan journals.

It is also, opposed to legislation, and extraordinary corporate privileges, by which associated men can overrule private enterprise. It will labor to expose all such against railroad extortions, and every unjust discrimination against the masses of the people.

Now IS THE TIME FOR ALL PARTIES.

We have a large corps of intelligent correspondents, scattered throughout Minnesota and the surrounding States, who are instructed to give us the fullest details of every important event.

In addition to these facilities for making a full report of all the news occurring in the State, we will furnish the full proceedings of our State Legislature, and proceedings of Political, Religious, and other Conventions, and the like.

Our Local News of St. Paul, including the most complete and accurate.

It is in good health, and abides by its principles, as enunciated in its National and State Editions.

It is in healthy sympathy with the people.

Herald.

F. E. DU TOIT Proprietor.

VOLUME 10

The Valley Herald

Official County Paper.

BY F. E. DU TOIT.

CHASKA THURSDAY FEB. 23 1871.

To The Friends of Pomology.

The German Horticultural Society of Carver County, had at its nineteenth session under consideration, the question; Wherein lies the fault that fruit growing, especially in Carver County, makes such slow progress. After the subject matter was thoroughly discussed by all the members present, it was resolved that, while it is deplorable it is yet

true, the main fault is to be found in the fact that the great majority of the farmers of Carver County do not feel interested enough to promote the noble object even to join the Association which has been formed with the organization of the County, whose object is the promotion of fruit growing but who have for want of sufficient strength and participation, on behalf of those for whose benefit it was formed, met with but very limited success.

Further that the unattractability of climate and soil can be remedied by selecting a good site and by selecting the right kind of fruit from a good ancient; more than 100 different kinds of apples and other fruits can be successfully grown in our County. But of course the selection of those kinds, which have proven themselves adaptable to our climate and soil is the most essential part to which we call the attention of the friends of fruit growing. Not to trust their money into the pockets of every humbug that comes along, and pay them the highest prices of the most worthless trash. No less than $4,500 dollars has been squandered within the last 2, 3 years on the most worthless of crab-apples.

Also further that the peddlars who have been selling trees in this County, or at least a great majority of them are unscrupulous men, whereas they sell trees that are not adopted to our climate; that such trees are generally brought here from eastern nurseries, taken up at the wrong season, in most cases badly packed and generally a long time on their way so that the low small roots from which the trees get its nutri-timent are nearly if not all dead before they are set out again. And further that in very few cases the kind that is ordered are sent.

It has been the constant aim of the German Horticultural Society of Carver

County to counter act the swindling operations of such peddlars. And those who are willing to have their pockets picked at the hands of such unscrupulous men should join the Association at once and they will soon find themselves in possession of such fruit trees which are adopted to climate and soil.

Secretary.

MY WIFE AND I.

sky of astro, a bit of heaven,
is bound to me to pearls given,
a star, a diamond, a pearl by side,
Then threading friends,
A bit of gold, a bit of silver,
And so we are married—
My wife and I.

Long hours—days, long days of joy,
Time passing unheeded, moment by moment,
A tour, where everything looks like home,
A river in Autumn glory dressed,
Never seen, nor seen,
For we are so happy—
My wife and I.

A slow awakening, as from a dream,
A drawing once more into life-work's stream,
The world is here, how glad we are again,
But a home and a love,
That shall last for eyc,
For we are so happy—
My wife and I.

And as hours vanish in time's quick flight,
And our life's fair morning grows to nearly
As darkness falls, the pleasure grows,
And your hearts are broken with the other gray,
Yet shall have increase
And we live for each other—
My wife and I.

WOODEN LEGGED GHOST.

A Real True Story of Spirituality
and its Antagonist.

Correspondence N. Y. Times.

In my Times of this morning, in an editorial article, I was forcibly struck with the remark,

"Most people turn a willing ear to every revelation of the marvelous."

Suspicion and credulity can scarcely be regarded as salient features of our nineteenth century civilization.

A few of us would like to confess how, after all we have given our faith of the supernatural Ghost stories, which have not lost their seget charm for the most, as well as the simplest.

Of course, the logic of science and of reason, all these theories are nonsense; but after all, it is a notion for which we cannot help keeping a soft spot in our hearts."

I think it was Charles Lamb who reasoned that science had established the fact that the subject of ghosts was not theory, or anything of that indeterminate sort, and he "worked it out" in this way:

"It is now admitted to be a scientific truth, that at the end of every seventh year of every man's life, or every woman's life, not particle of physical humanity remains in the system, which was in it at seven years before."

Every seven years, therefore, a man or woman is "nothing but" a woman but another man or woman. Every seven years there has been peeled off from each a concentric ring, as from the concentric ring of an onion, a shadowy representative of the individual person which is wandering in space, increasing by one at the end of every seven years. And this was Lamb's theory of ghosts. Every seven years a man's ghost left him, to appear afterward, however, and at any time, and "no questions asked," of a cold night, as in the poor buried King of Denmark's case. Now, reader, has not this thought, so forcibly expressed by Joaquin Balbuena, sometimes entered your mind?

"She has the deepest eyes on the globe—

She will guide past thee in the mystic hour,
And then perceives not? or thinks not perhaps
'Tis but the mournful breath that raves to me?"

Sitting beside a winter fire of an evening in a roundabout chair upon a solitary hearth, in a house where the upper stories of a footstep is to be heard only after the summons of a bell, have you never encountered those "mistering spirits"? I think you have. I know I have.

The fact is, that there is not one family in ten but has its traditional ghost story, which, when narrated to the ground that gathers round the winter fireside, is as acceptable according to the age and character of the hearer, as terror, sympathy, doubt, incredulity and ridicule. Still the old story is kept alive, and cherished in after life; for it pertains to that world of nutried being, which approaches toward us with its slow and noiseless but irresistible and overwhelming movement.

The reader will be pleased to learn, by an old friend and correspondent, that he was told first to me at his own most hospitable hearth, and afterward, at my earnest request, reduced to writing, from which the present narrative is greatly reduced, yet contains in compact form, all that is necessary for the full understanding of the reader. The important point made by Lamb is as to the eccentric theory of wooden ghosts (in rings) every seven years, in a wooden leg, which does not expand, and bongeon, and fade, and vanish, in shadow with the human system—"that is the question." The very remarkable record of the case, which took place in the Island of Dominica, and which is still to be presented some national epicure, which promises to increase as time goes on.

During a period of considerable excitement, arising from a season of great mortality among the inhabitants of the island, in the year —, a veteran Scottish regiment was stationed upon the heights of a hill, which forms one point of a range of hills which over looks the town and harbor. Inward toward the east, a small plain extends itself, white, on the west and north, which is nearest the shore, and almost overhanging it, are several low, one story buildings, hasty erected, of wood, for the accommodation of the officers, and the men, and consisting of all of three or four rooms, and enclosing with a piazza on the side toward the sea, extending the whole length of the structure, and forming a shaded and agreeable promenade during the earlier part of the day. The rooms opened upon the piazza, and communicated with each other, through a side door, which was occasionally kept open for the free circulation of air.

In one of these barracks were quartered three officers of the regiment—Major Hamilton, Capt. Gordon, and a third, whose name I cannot at this moment recall.

Major Hamilton's apartment, was in the broad day. He dressed himself, went to town, drew up a statement of the affair, and swore to it. A recent arrival had brought intelligence of the death of his father, and his accession to a large estate. When ten days he applied for a furlough, but had been the mortality among the officers that his request was refused. Another arrival, however, brought to the island a reinforcement for the garrison, and the difficulty was removed, on a second application, in three weeks.

He called immediately for Scotland, and arranged his affairs, and intended to leave for the country, and consisting of all of three or four rooms, and enclosing with a piazza on the side toward the sea, extending the whole length of the structure, and forming a shaded and agreeable promenade during the earlier part of the day. The rooms opened upon the piazza, and communicated with each other, through a side door, which was occasionally kept open for the free circulation of air.

The sound of the Major's step was peculiar. It was only the blow given by the iron ferrule at the end of his wooden leg that was hard; for, although a stout, hardy, high-spirited man, the remaining foot, which gave forth its note at short intervals, as he paced to and fro so regularly that there was a certain pleasure in listening to it, sounds that strike the ear in this measured way affect us more than others. The attention becomes engrossed, and the imagination is fully employed.

The calker's hammer stroke, as it flies from the dock-yard, the busy port across some placid bay into the green and peaceful country, is an instance of this truth. Associated with this measured movement of the Major, was his deep cheery voice, that made light of danger and difficulty, whether on the field of battle, or as now amid the scenes which was devastating the colony at the present epoch.

Major Hamilton was taken down with this disease, a dry fever which "drank the blood," and was attended with him. The Major was confident of recovery, and, from his happy temperament his physician agreed with him. But these hopes were not destined to be realized. He expired seven days after his admission, while endeavoring to speak a last word to his friend Captain Gordon. He was buried under arms at sunset of the same day.

Now, it was on the second night after this wonderful event that Gordon, having retired to bed later than usual, found himself unexpectedly awake. He reached his trumpet, and found it only a HOOT, PAGE 10. He turned on the other side, and composed himself afresh. Thoughts of his friend over his heart as his cheek reached the pillow, and he said: "Poor Hamilton! Well, God have mercy upon us!"

He felt at this moment that some one had said "Amen" with great solemnity, and effectively aroused, and asked: "Who is it?"

There was no reply. His voice seemed to echo into Hamilton's apartment, and he then remembered that the door was open which communicated between the two rooms. He listened intently, but heard nothing save the beating of the heart. He then realized that a reform might be effected by one who was a master of mechanics. The surgeon of the hospital, however, did not respect because he receives high fees; but he obtains these fees because he is respected, and he is respected because he is a well educated and thoroughly trained professional man.

There is no doubt that the surgeon of the hospital, to be properly performed, requires education and training, if at all inferior to that possessed by members of the medical profession. To leave these duties to untaught and ill-trained persons is a great mistake as it was to allow the office of surgeon to be filled by one who was not equal to the task of the hundred and one operations which a surgeon must perform. Every medical college should have a course of study and training specially adapted for ladies who desire to qualify themselves for the profession of nurse; and those who had gone through the course, and passed the requisite examination, should be granted a degree and diploma, which would enable them to establish their position in society. The "graduate nurse" would be general estimation be as much above the ordinary nurse of the present day as the professional surgeon of our times is to the barber-surgeon of the last century.

It would not, however, be necessary that the professional nurse should be educated in a medical institution, although the degree or diploma should be in all cases procured from one. In this respect the example of the English universities might be followed, in awarding degrees to out-students who are taught in the hospitals, the confessional examination. Physicians (either doctors or dentists) might receive diplomas, degrees of qualifying themselves for the profession of nurse. If the pupil had already a good general education (which would be absolutely essential), a year devoted to the special studies of medicine and science, and another year of medical and dental combined, would probably be sufficient for this object. It must be borne in mind, however, that in this profession, as in all others, there would be no short road to proficiency, and that the higher the qualifications the better, as a general rule.

It is once the value of the "graduate nurse" been known, there is no doubt that the demand for her would be very great. Every village of a thousand inhabitants would, with the country about it, give occupation to two or three, at least. In any case of severe or protracted illness, their services are called for, and the master of the family, when the circumstances of the family admit, should be willing to pay a fee, and the nurse should be glad to recommend an assistant, on whose intelligent co-operation he could rely, and who would be too well informed to interfere with his treatment. An uneducated nurse is apt to do many things which would be better done by a physician, and, if she would be willing to learn, she could easily be taught.

He returned to the door that stood open between the two rooms. The Major's apartment was darkened by the curtains being closed, and he could distinguish nothing inside it. While he stood gazing into the dark room, the thought of being alone in the dark room, a disembodied spirit rose in his mind, and although a brave man, he did not immediately control the bristling sensations of terror that began to possess him.

He passed out onto the piazza. The sound presented itself to him.

"Have you been long stationed here?" said Capt. Gordon.

"Half an hour," was the reply.

"Did you—did you happen to see anyone on the piazza during the time?"

"I did not."

Gordon returned at once to his room, and sat at his desk, at having been present at the piazza of his own brain. He closed his door and his window, and went to bed.

He was now thoroughly awake, and had regained, he thought, entire possession of his faculties. "My old comrade," said he, "what could he possibly mean?" We were all aware that he was friendly kind-hearted, but somewhat of a curmudgeon. No man was ever his enemy, except upon the field itself. Why should I have dreaded to meet him even if such an event could possibly be?"

A moment or two after this he was most paralyzed with dread, by what he termed the "well-known step," which now seemed to mark the date and tenorities of his life.

"Gordon! listen, but do not speak to me!"

MY WIFE AND I.

A day or two ago, in heaven,
in honor of his wife's return,
church, a dainty dress by my side,
solemn service, a kiss—a bride,
I left goodness,
And so we are married—
My wife and I.

Long hours of repose, long days of joy,
Time passes unheeded—without end,
A tour, where every thing looks like
A river in the winter frost,
Not thought of—
Nor care, nor rest,
Love, love, love—
My wife and I.

A slow awakening, as from a dream,
A drifting since into life's stream,
A little sleep, a little rest,
The world is here again,
But a home and a love—
Pleasant bed for me,
For now we are—
My wife and I.

And so we have, in such time's quick flight,
Our love, our happiness growing to eight,
We carving care, care, up the other grey,
And four husbands broken with the other grey,
Yet still we live merrily—
As the old song says—
And we live for each other—
My wife and I.

A WOODEN LEGGED GHOST.

A Real True Story—spirituality and its Agents.

Correspondence N.Y. Times.
In my Times of this morning, in an editorial article, I was forcibly struck with the truth that—"Most people take it as a willing ear to every revelation of the marvellous. Superstition and credulity can surely be regarded as salient features of our nineteenth century civilization, and yet few of us would like to confess how, after all we have given our faith of the most wondrous Ghost stories, which have not lost their sweet charm for the wisest, as well as the simplest. Of course, in the light of science and reason, all these things are nonsense—but after all, it is a nonsense for which we cannot help keeping a soft spot in our hearts."

It is now admitted to be a scientific truth, that at the end of every seventh year, every man's life, or every woman's life, is a picture of physical humanity remaining in their bodies, which was in it seven years before.

Every seven years, therefore, a man or woman is "that man" or "woman," but another man or woman. Every seven years there has been peeled off from each a concentric ring, as from the skin of an onion; a shadowy representative of an onion, a shadowy representative of an individual person, which is wandering about, increasing by one at the end of every seven years. And thus was Lamb's theory of ghosts. Every seven years a man's ghost left him, to appear afterward anywhere, and at any time, and on any question asked, of a cold night, say, "Mark the spot, King of Denmark's case." Now, reader, has not this thought, so forcibly expressed by Jermyn Bailey, sometimes entered your mind?

"Shall the departed case on them again?"
Shall I still pass her the mortal heap,
Till then perceive it?—I think perhaps
The ghostly bairns break that vase by Sitting. Under the quiet fire of an evening in a nodding chair upon a salient hearth, in a house where the uneventful sound of a footstep is to be heard only after the summons of a bell, have you never encountered those "ministering spirits?" I think you have.

The fact is, that there is not one family in the world that has not a traditional ghost story, which when repeated to the group that gathers round the winter fireside, excites, according to the age and character of the listeners, terror-sympathy, doubt, incredulity and ridicule. Still the old story is kept alive, and cherished in after-life; for it partakes of that world of nutried being, which appeals to us with its slow and noiseless but irresistible and overwhelming movement.

The incident narrated below, by an old friend and correspondent of mine, was told first to me at his own most hospitable hearth, and afterward, at my earnest request, reduced to writing, from which the present narrative is greatly reduced, but retains the effectual form, all that is necessary for the full understanding of the reader. The important point made by Lamb, as to the eccentric theory of escaped ghosts, in leg rings, every seven years, in a wooden leg, which does not expand, and bows and falls and vanish in shadow with the human system—that is the question. The following incident took place in the Island of Dominica, in relation to which there is at present some national agitation, which promises to increase as time goes on.

During a period of considerable exertion, arising from a season of great mortality among the inhabitants of the island, in the year 1803, a very singular incident was witnessed upon the high bank of land which forms one point of a crescentular bay, and overlooks the town and harbor. Inland, toward the east, a small plain extends itself, sloping down to the west, and north, which is marshy and boggy, and almost overrunning; it is covered, now, one-story buildings, hasty erected, of wood, for the accommodation of the officers of the corps, and consisting all of three or four rooms in each end, with a piazza on the side toward the sea, extending the whole length of the structure, and forming a landing and agreeable promenade for the earlier part of the day. The room, open upon the piazza and communicating with each other by means of a side-door, which was occasionally kept open for the free circulation of air.

In one of these barracks were quartered the officers of the regiment—Major Hamilton, Capt. Gordon, and a third, whose name I cannot at this moment recall.

Major Hamilton's apartment was in the center. He had lost a leg in the service, and usually wore a wooden pin or stick shod with iron; and being an alert man, fond of exercise, used to walk up and down this piazza for hours together, strolling occasionally at Gordon's door, to whom he often addressed himself in at least of the other officer, exchanging a cheerful word with them, as they sat, each in his apartment, a deader to begin the time with dressing, reading, writing, thoughts of promotion, of home, and of a speedy and happy return to Britain.

The sound of Major's step was peculiar. It was only the blow given by the iron ferrule at the end of his wooden leg that was heard; for, altho' a stout man, he trod lightly with the remaining foot, and heavily only with the wooden substitute, which gave forth its note at short intervals, he paced so nimbly and rapidly, that there was a certain pleasure in watching it. Sounds that strike the ear in this measured way affect us more than others. The attention becomes engrossed, and they grow emphatic as we listen.

The clacker's hammer stroke, as it flies from the dock-yard of the busy port across some placid bay into the green and peaceful country, is an instance of speediness.

this truth. Associated with this unusual movement of the Major, was his deep cheery voice, that made light of danger and difficulty, whether on the field of battle, or as now amid the scenes of war, devastating the colony.

Major Hamilton was soon taken down with this sickness, a dry fever, which "blows the blood," and was attended with delirium. The Major was confident of recovery, and from his happy temperament, his physician agreed with him, that his recovery was not destined to be realized. He expired seven days after he was first seen, while desirous to speak a last word to his friend, Captain Gordon. He was buried near Captain Gordon.

Now, on the second night after that wonderful event that Gordon, having retired to bed later than usual, was unexpectedly awake. He touched his temples, and said only a little past 1 o'clock. He turned to the other side and composed himself afresh. Thoughts of his friend came over his heart as his cheek reached the pillow, and he said: "Poor Hamilton! Well, God have mercy upon us!"

He felt at this moment that he was ill, and then remembered that the door was open which communicated between the room and the kitchen. He listened intently, but heard nothing but the beating of his own heart, set in a rapid vibration, "he said, and once more laid his head upon the pillow, and the moment he did so distinctly heard, for the first time, the Major's well-known step. It was not a matter to be mistaken.

The shrill sound; the pause, the quiescent examination, should recruit degree and diploma, which would at once establish their position in society. The "graduate nurse" would in general step fast in the ice.

The Assistant Postmaster at New York died suddenly, about 11 o'clock, Sunday night, from heart disease. He occupied the position since 1822, with the exception of an interval of three years.

It would not, however, be necessary that the professional nurse should be educated in a medical institution, although the degree or diploma should in all cases proceed from one. In this respect the example of the English universities might be followed, in awarding degrees to candidates who are not qualified to pass the scientific examination. Physicians (other doctors on doctores) might receive pupils decisions of qualifying themselves for the profession of nurse. If the pupil had already received general education (which would be absolutely essential), a short course of the medical sciences of medicine and science, and another of reading and practice combined, would probably be sufficient for this object.

It must be borne in mind, however, that in this profession, as in all others, there would be no shore road to proficiency, except in the presence of a dissembled spirit rose in his mind, and although a brave man, he did not necessarily control the bristling sensations of terror that began to possess him.

He passed out onto the piazza. The sentinel presented arms.

"Have you been long stationed here?" said Capt. Gordon.

"Half an hour," was the reply.

"Did you happen to see anyone on the piazza during the time?"

"I did not."

Gordon returned at once to his room, vexed at himself at having been the sport of an illusion of his own brain. He closed his door and this window, and went to bed.

He was now thoroughly awake, and by the recurrence of the well-known step, which now seemed pacing the dark and noiseless apartment. All combined to make, in his imagination, a situation appalling and awful. It was then in great earnestness that he exclaimed,

"In the name of God, Hamilton!—is that you?"

A voice from the threshold of the communicating door, addressed him in tones that sank deeply into his soul:

"Gordon! listen, but do not speak to me!"

In ten days you will apply for a pension, and be granted you.

You will renew the application for a pension, and it will be successful.

Say no longer in Scotland than is absolutely necessary. Go to London.

Take lodgings at No. 27 Jermyn street. You will be shown into an apartment looking out upon the chimney-pieces, and you will find a room which will establish the fact of your marriage, and will give you the address of my wife and son. Haste! for they are in deep distress; and those papers will establish their right. Do not forget me!"

When Capt. Gordon arose it was to dress himself, went to town, drew up the map of the affair, and swore to it. The rebel had brought intelligence of the death of his father, and of his accession to a large estate. Within ten days he applied for a furlough, but such had been the mortality among the officers, and particularly among the earlier part of the day. Lady Nurses.

Much has been lately said of the benefits that would follow if the calling of sick nurse were to be a profession which an educated lady might enter without a sense of derogation either on her part or in the estimation of others. A writer in an annual periodical suggests that this result could be brought about by raising the scale of remuneration in the case of such lady nurses. He admits the justness of this suggestion, but says that the physician, surgeon, who was formerly the chief assistant of the physician, and frequently combined the office with that of barber, but who is now a gentleman receiving as high fees and held in the same estimation as other men, has not been consulted.

The writer of the article, however, makes no reference to the fact that the physician, surgeon, who was formerly the chief assistant of the physician, and frequently combined the office with that of barber, but who is now a gentleman receiving as high fees and held in the same estimation as other men, has not been consulted.

MY HEROES.

BY SUSAN COLLMORE.

Every morning, up the hill,
Climbing the path with footstep strong;
And then the sun comes up, and spills
I drive my little horse down along;

And every evening, as I pass,
Winding home through the mountain-tops,
The sun goes down, and all is still—
I drive my little herd down again.

My herd is not of goats or sheep;
There's not a horn among the crew—
And the sheep fawn on which they browse
In tiny swarms, are all the crew.

To you, — with, they eat no cheese;
My father or my mother know to eat;
But I can drive them when I please;
And oh! I love my herds so well.

They hop, they skip, they run, they prance;
They play, they spin, they prance;
And their feet in their dry, dark hoofs
The charms in its highest bound.

Sometimes the lawns are slow,
Permit me to set them down;
And the flowers, like the girls, are fair,
Held in the folds of my gown.

They do not know I call them mine,
They do not know my voice of mirth;
They do not know my laugh, my smile,
But I possess them all the same.

Now guess, my brother, all day long,
If happy you may not see
Who are the creators of my song;
Or what my little herd can be.

THE POT OF PANSIES.

BY AUNT FATTY.

As Alfred Hayes was sauntering home at evening, with a cigar in his mouth, he met his friend, Louis Steadman, walking briskly along with a party of boisterous in his hand.

"For my word," said Alfred, taking his cigar from his lips, "you must have got into a new business."

"These are for my mother," said Louis, smiling. "Are they not beautiful? And indeed they were beautiful, with their rich gold and purple hints, and the delicate perfume which breathed from every blossom.

"Oh, they are well enough," said Alfred indifferent; "but I would spend money for such things; even if I could afford it."

"These cost no more than five of your cigars, and I know they give us all a hundred times more pleasure, yes, and a far better kind of pleasure, too. Your indulgence is only ruining you. You know this, Alf; but these flowers do us good, both in body and mind."

"Then I do feel better. I haven't time for one of your regular sermons to-night, but I'll wish you much joy over your flowers," and with a careless nod might be sauntered on.

Louis bounded up the steps of his home, sure of a glad welcome. The bright eyes and happy faces which gathered about his simple gift, spoke more than words could say; and, after being duly admired, they were placed in the sunny window, beside the beautiful lilies and sweet geraniums already blooming there.

Surely he had gained far more in their perfume and their charming presence than by his cigar or his tobacco investment. Alfred had a bright, hot, dry mouth, a foul breath, dissipation, a yellow skin, drowsiness and headache, and worst of all, a taste that would call loudly for other stimulants to gratify it. Surely Louis had made a far better choice in expending a few odd shillings which would make him happier, nobler, and better, than to lay the foundation for a truly honored character in after years.—from Young America.

The Power of Children.

A man was leaning, most intimated against a tree; some little girls coming from school sat him there, and at once said to each other "What shall we do for him?"

Presently, said one, "Oh, I'll tell you, let's sing him a temperature song."

And so they did; collecting around him, they sang:

"Awake the bowl, awake the bowl,"

and so on in beautiful tones.

The poor fellow enjoyed the singing, and when he had finished that song, said "sing again, little girls, sing again."

"We will," they said; "if you will sing the temperature pledge."

"No, we are not at a temperature meeting; there are no pledges here."

"I have a pledge," cried one; and holding up the pledge and pencil, they besought him to sign it.

"No; I won't sign it now. Sing for me, they sang again—

"There's that in the drumhead's bowl, Is not the drink for me."

"Oh, do sing that again," said he as he wiped the tears from his eyes.

"No, no more," said they, "unless you'll sign the pledge; sign, and we'll sing it for you."

"I do wish there was no such thing as the thistle in the world," they said, pettishly.

And yet the Scottish nation thinks so much of it when they engrave it on their national emblem, said the mother.

"It is the last flower that I should pick out," said Winnie. "I am sure they might have found a great many nice ones, even among the weeds."

"But the thistle did them a good service once," said her mother, "they worked to esteem it very highly. One time the French invaded Scotland, and they prepared to make a night attack on a sleeping garrison. So the Scotch, along barefooted, as stiff as possible, until they were almost up to the spot. Just at that moment a barefooted soldier stepped on a great thistle, and the hurt made him a sharp, shrill cry of pain. This caused the whole garrison to fight with greater bravery, and the invaders were driven back with much loss. So you see the thistle saved Scotland; and ever since it has been placed on their seal as their national flower."

Parisians Bodily Sold.

Paris has been very much astonished to learn that one of its pet heroes, Sergeant Hoff, was in reality a Bavarian mercenary who was playing the part of a spy. From the time he first came to Paris he was the object of universal admiration. General Trochon conferred the Legion of Honor upon him for having slain 30 Prussians. Gen. Schmitz gave him an official bulletin, and he was interviewed by journalists. Hoff generally used to go out alone at night, and bring back helmets and swords from the scenes of the scenes of business, but he performed. On the 2d of December Hoff, much to the grief of his comrades, disappeared, and the government was greatly blamed for having allowed such a valuable man to go into action like a common mortal. In some quarters it was considered that Hoff should have replaced Trochon. When he was asked if he had had any subscription raised for his disconsolate "widow" which was entitled to that lady with the greatest respect by four officers (reminding one of Monsieur Malibrok's funeral). To the astonishment of the military deputation, the first exclamation of the bereaved, on hearing the news, was "I didn't know he was a Prussian till the other day." Tableau! Paris can't help laughing at having been outwitted, shrugs its shoulders, and says, "Sommes nous bêtes?" According to the franchises Hoff has since been caught and executed.

Western Writers—The paper always one of the best in the State—comes to us unchanged, and that too for the better, as to be hardly recognizable. It presents itself in a more artistic form, with an ornamental head, and such like.
